The EMV Chip & PIN is a superior level of security on your Credit Card, in line with best global practices. It thus provides an additional layer of safety against counterfeit and skimming related fraud.

How will I use the IndusInd Bank EMV Credit Card on a chip (POS – point of sale) terminal?

When you use an EMV Chip & PIN Credit Card at a POS terminal which is enabled for PIN transactions, the POS machine will prompt you to enter a 4-digit PIN. Once you enter the correct Credit Card PIN in the terminal, your transaction will be approved.

Please follow the below process for a successful transaction:

Step 1: The merchant inserts your Credit Card in the Card slot at a PIN enabled POS terminal and enters the transaction amount.

Step 2: The POS machine prompts for a 4-digit PIN to be entered by the Cardholder.

Step 3: On entering the correct Credit Card PIN in the machine, the transaction is approved.

At POS terminals, which do not support the PIN authentication, your EMV Chip Credit Card needs to be inserted in the Chip slot and your transaction will be completed as it is done today.

At POS terminals, which do not support an EMV Chip Credit Card, the Card can be swiped at the merchant terminal and your transaction will be completed as it is done today.

Will I need to enter PIN at every POS terminal(s) be it Domestic or International?

Yes. IndusInd Bank EMV Credit Cards can be used at any merchants around the world where your Credit Card is accepted today.

How does chip technology work for online and mail order/IVR (Interactive Voice Response) transactions?

Online transactions will function the same way as they do today.

For online Credit Card transactions, a VBV (Verified by Visa) password will be required to complete the transaction; the process will remain as it exists today.

For Mail order and telephone transactions, effective 1st February 2011 a 6-digit OTP (One Time Password) is required and will be applicable for chip Cards as well.

Can a Chip Card be compromised?

A compromise of your Card means the Card information has been copied and a fraudster is trying to access your account. As of now, we have not observed any compromise of a chip Credit Card as the security chip makes it difficult to copy the Credit Card details. This would be possible only if you continue to swipe the magnetic stripe of your IndusInd Bank EMV Credit Card at a merchant terminal instead of inserting the chip Card to complete your transaction.

Which shopping outlets have chip-enabled terminals?

Most of the merchants have chip-enabled terminals. In case the merchant doesn't have chip enabled terminal, the Card can be swiped for transactions.

Is the IndusInd Bank EMV Credit Card durable?
